Volume 39, Issue 3

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Happy New Year!

We had a very productive January Business meeting last week. A special thanks to our gracious hosts, Prano Amjadi and Whitney Alexander, who provided us with use of the beautiful new law school space at Santa Clara University. We were fortunate to have a fascinating speaker begin the meeting. Prof. Michelle Oberman, a law professor at Santa Clara, discussed her new book, entitled "Our Laws, Her Body," and her interactions with Central American women who have been incarcerated due to criminal convictions of illegal abortions. The presentation is now available on our YouTube channel here: <https://youtu.be/FYNT-wHViKs>.

Speaking of presentations - do you have a webinar idea? Or perhaps simply some project you'd like to show off to your colleagues? We are actively looking for people to conduct webinars, presentations, and other educational events using our new web conferencing platform. Perhaps you're a firm librarian who wants to communicate to law school librarians what research skills they are neglecting? Or perhaps you are a government librarian with a desire to share with our other constituencies on how legal research practices have changed in state or federal court? This is a great opportunity to get ourselves out of our "silos" and engage with colleagues who face different challenges, financial pressures, or goals.

As we all know, the only thing that is constant in our profession is change. We are constantly inundated with developments in legal technology, research practices, or work practices. Are you feeling overwhelmed by all the technology change? Then you might find attending our upcoming Spring Institute to be particularly useful. The theme is "The Changing Face of Technology in Law Librarianship" and will be held in San Francisco. Our illustrious incoming president, Jocelyn Stillwell-Tong, has already done amazing work lining up speakers to discuss the rapidly changing environment of legal technology and how information professionals can keep up. The event will include a tour of the nearby Ninth Circuit Courthouse where some of our very own NOCALL members will act as docents. It's a must-attend event!

I've learned so much about NOCALL while serving as president. We are truly a volunteer organization that relies exclusively on the time, and effort, contributed by our membership. As we begin our New Year's resolutions, perhaps this year you may find yourself motivated to serve on a committee; conduct a webinar; run for a board position; or help out with the Spring Institute. We need your help! As we approach our 40th anniversary, let's collectively ensure that NOCALL continues to be a vibrant, and relevant, professional organization. Volunteer!!

Are you smarter than a law librarian? Prove it at NOCALL Trivia Night!

WHAT:

Join NOCALL for a night of food, drinks, and finally proving that you're the smartest law librarian in Northern California. Gather your friends, make new friends, and compete for prizes and major bragging rights in a pub trivia-style contest. Come with a team, or be placed on one when you get there! This event is not to be missed!

WHERE:

San Francisco Law Library, 1145 Market Street, 4th Floor, San Francisco, CA (near mid-Market and the Civic Center between 7th and 8th Streets, across from the UN Plaza) Directions:

<https://sflawlibrary.org/LOCATION-AND-HOURS>

WHEN:

Wednesday, February 6, 2019, 5:30PM to 8PM (Networking and drinks start at 5:30 PM; Trivia starts at 6:15PM)

COST:

$10 to cover food (pizza) costs and BYOB (Beer and wine are permitted in the library for this event)

RSVP:

To Maribel Nash maribel.nash@dlapiper.com by Friday, February 1, 2019.

HEADNOTES FROM HOLLY

Holly Riccio
HBR Consulting

MUSINGS ON MUSINGS... I was a bit hesitant to step forward and say I would like to carry on the tradition that Mark Mackler started with his Musings From Mark column. How could I even attempt to fill those shoes and continue what has, without a doubt, become a staple of NOCALL News since it first appeared in the September/October 1994 issue? Can I pay homage to the tradition Mark started, while also keeping things fresh and adding a unique and relevant take on the happenings in our professional—and larger—world? Not one to shy away from a challenge, I decided to dive in feet first, and thus Headnotes From Holly was born.

A ROSE BY ANY OTHER NAME... When Mark started his column, he took inspiration from the SLA SF Bay Region Newsletter's Soapbox column, and his stated intent with his Musings... column was as follows:

In this column, I intend to say what's on my mind about the state of our profession today, focusing mostly on the local scene. I invite you to write me or call me with your comments and observations, regardless of whether you agree with me or not. I will include selected responses in subsequent columns. I guarantee anonymity if you request it. No O.J. Simpson trial leaks here!

I plan to take a similar approach, although my thoughts may expand beyond local issues and topics and will pull from my experiences from the law firm library side, as well as my new experiences from the legal consulting world. In trying to encapsulate what this Musings 2.0 column will be all about—and also find an equally catchy headline—I came up with Headnotes From Holly. The OED defines a headnote as language "...summarizing or commenting on the content," which seems to match my intent for this column, and the (hopefully) obvious nod to legal research provides some law librarian comic relief. And, if anyone wants to share items, blind or otherwise, I would love to incorporate them in future columns. The "no O.J. trial leaks" promise still stands.

CH-CH-CH-CH-CHANGES... My favorite quote about change came from a speaker at the AALL Annual Meeting Luncheon some years ago. She said, "Change is hard. You go first." While it was meant to be tongue in cheek, I am sure we can all attest that it also rings very true. Professionally, 2018 held a lot of change for me—some of my choosing and some not. What I always find intriguing in times of change is the opportunity for a change in perspective. I love that my new role allows me to leverage the connections and relationships from my professional career—and, specifically, my volunteer involvement in AALL, the PLLIP-SIS and NOCALL—in a new way. I get to bring new perspectives to a variety of situations, and no two will ever be the same. I think as I move forward, it is time for a new favorite change quote: "Change is inevitable. Progress is optional."

JUST ASK... I have been fortunate to have served in a myriad of volunteer roles over the course of my career, and I am not done yet. I find volunteering one of the most rewarding things to do with my "spare" time, and one amazing outcome of my writing this column would be if I could inspire and encourage fellow NOCALL members to jump into the volunteer pool, especially those who have been hesitant to date. One strategy I have employed in work situations, especially when it comes to KM initiatives, is to think big, start small, and scale up. That advice can very easily and accurately apply to association volunteerism.

Find something you are passionate about or have a talent for and see if there is a way to do something with NOCALL that is a good match. If you are unsure about where you can contribute, just ask. Ask the NOCALL President. Ask another NOCALL Board member or Committee chair. Ask a fellow member sitting next to you at a NOCALL event. Ask me. (Some of you may still remember the “Just Ask” campaign that many law librarians used as part of their National Library Week campaigns and legal research trainings. I think I even have some branded notepads in a box in my garage to this day.) The benefits of volunteering are many, and often present themselves after the fact. I know that my professional journey is paved with opportunities that were a direct result of something I volunteered to do.

ALL IN FOR NOCALL... I really mean it when I say that this column is as much yours as it is mine. I welcome your comments, ideas, thoughts, insight, experiences, gripes...whatever you have—and want—to say is welcome and encouraged. We are all more successful when we share with and learn from each other. I hope to share some things in subsequent columns that are inspiring, intriguing, thought-provoking and sometimes maybe even disruptive, but all—and always—in the name of NOCALL.

E-READER BOOK REVIEWS

Elisabeth McKechnie
U.C. Davis Law Library

This edition of my e-book reviews will celebrate the recent sunset of the Sonny Bono Copyright Act, which added twenty extra years to then-current copyright.

All books listed below were published in 1923 and, as of January 1, 2019, are at long last in the public domain. For more information on the Act and its effect on the public domain, see: The Guardian, The New York Times.

I haven't read all of these but have selected those that sound interesting or fun and have acquired them all from the Internet Archive via A Public Peek Into 1923 and the IA's link to the 20,000 books just added.

How You Can Keep Fit by Rudolph Valentino

Price: Free

Source: Internet Archive

Format: Kindle, EPUB, PDF

Yes, the author is THAT Rudolph Valentino and this is a real exercise book. It also includes photographs of the Sheik himself, shirtless, demonstrating the exercises as well as Valentino's own philosophy of physical fitness. Whether you want to adopt the exercises into your own fitness program or just gawk at some 1920's eye candy, this book is for you!

ABC of Dress by Harry Collins

Price: Free

Source: Internet Archive

Formats: Kindle (not recommended), EPUB, PDF

This fashion book, with a handwritten note by First Lady Florence Harding for a frontispiece, tries to educate the home seamstress in the construction of tasteful clothing with a 1920's aesthetic. To my surprise, he gives instructions on getting a properly fitting corset for those women lacking a boyish figure as well as introducing concepts allowing her to design clothing for herself. He presents problems based on figure types rather than fashion and focuses on line, materials, color and texture and provides line illustrations of 1920's dresses. Get the PDF copy rather than the Kindle. Kindle lacks drawings and has many scan errors.

Patrick Branwell Bronte by Alice Law

Price: Free

Source: Internet Archive

Formats: Kindle, EPUB, PDF (recommended)

History has recorded Branwell Bronte as the spoiled, alcoholic brother who wasted his education and genius in the bottle. Mrs. Law takes exception to that conclusion and takes on the biographers of the Brontes to date as prejudiced and wrong. She contends that Branwell is misunderstood and may well have written part of Wuthering Heights, as the young man himself declared at one point. It's an interesting point of view not much espoused in these modern days. Kindle version has many errors.

PROFESSIONAL READING IN REVIEW

Elisabeth McKechnie and Kristin Brandt
U.C. Davis Law Library

“Big Data and AI: Technology, Transparency and Trust,” by Marydee Ojala. InfoToday, Dec 2018. infotoday.com.

Librarians have been long accustomed to working with large quantities of data, including the internet, largely accessible by keyword. The age of the semantic search is dawning with the development of AI-enabled software. This article discusses the use of this type of software in legal practice, including that developed by Microsoft, Luminance and iManage. Given the almost magical results this software can deliver, information professionals often view it with distrust, especially since the workings of these applications is mostly a black box protected by intellectual property laws.

“‘But I just want a book!’ Is your discovery layer meeting your users’ needs?” by Christine Rigda, Margaret Hoogland, & Jessica Morales. Journal of Web Librarianship, November 15, 2018. Retrieved from <https://doi.org/10.1080/19322909.2018.1518183>

Discovery layers are now common in academic libraries, but are they working for users? The authors conducted a pilot usability study of the University of Toledo’s discovery platform, EBSCO Discovery Services. Participating students were asked to perform six tasks, such as finding books locally and within the University consortium and finding journal articles. Students experienced difficulty finding books and, in the case of open-ended tasks, continued searches even when they had obtained relevant results. The task force was able to make changes in the system to solve the book-finding problem. The authors concluded that library instruction was necessary to teach students how to search using discovery layers. For libraries that have not yet adopted discovery layers, the authors suggest that usability testing should take place before implementation.

“Generation Z Goes to Law School: Teaching and Reaching Law Students in the Post-Millennial Generation,” by Laura P. Graham. University of Arkansas at Little Rock Law Review, 2019, forthcoming. Retrieved from: https://papers.ssrn.com/sol3/papers.cfm?abstract\_id=3271137

The first members of Generation Z are already entering law schools and soon will be making their way into the legal profession. This generation—born between 1995 and 2010—likely never suffered from chicken pox and view “chatting” as unconnected from talking. The author argues that law schools can more effectively reach this generation by understanding their unique characteristics, such as dependence on parents and technology, slowness in taking on adult responsibilities, and anxiety about the future. Specific suggestions for legal educators include more critical reading and writing and increased emphasis on mindfulness and self-care.

“Linkrot + Content Drift = Reference Rot: The Unintended Consequences of Digitization,” by Laura Gordon-Murnane. Online Searcher, vol. 42, no. 6, pp. 10-17, 2018. Available via EBSCO.

How long does a webpage live? The founder of the Internet Archive estimates the average at about 100 days. Digital content cited in government documents, court opinions, and academic studies, and relied upon by decision makers may change or disappear altogether. The author details the problems of linkrot and content drift and makes specific suggestions for how librarians can advocate for and adopt preservation practices such as the Internet Archive’s Save This Page tool and Harvard Law Library Innovation Lab’s Perma.cc.

*Spotlight on...Coral HenningHow did you choose law librarianship as a career?

I don't think anyone when they are young sets out to be a law librarian. It just happens through sets of circumstances. My brother was a lawyer and he knew the Marin County Law Librarian and he asked him if there was clerk work available and the and the Director said yes and hired me at 19 to work evenings. I went to law school at twenty and a friend suggested that I apply to work at the SF County Law Library. Normally they don't hire first year students but because I had experience they hired me. I graduated from GGU and the SF Director offered me a position as the Assistant Director. How could I refuse and the rest is history.

What have you enjoyed the most from being involved with NOCALL?

The people, events, leadership opportunity and professional development. I encourage members to join a committee or run for office. NOCALL is what you make it and participation is critical.

Is there anything obscure that you know more than the average bear about?

Making pickles, canning and running a craft food business. I went to Pickle School at the Food Craft Institute in Oakland. One day I will sell pickles!

What 5 books made the biggest impression on you? How did they do so?The Food Lab: Better Home Cooking Through Science – September 21, 2015

by J. Kenji López-Alt (Author)

Kenji delves in to the science of homemade dishes and explains what works and what doesn't work for the home cook.

Feasting on Asphalt: The River Run – April 1, 2008

by Alton Brown (Author), Jean-Claude Dhien (Photographer)

Chronicles his 1000 mile motorcycle road trip following the Mississippi River. It is a travel diary a photo journal and of course a cookbook. My husband and I followed this book and went on a Delta Blues road trip of our own from Baton Rouge to Louisville Kentucky.

Kitchen Confidential Deluxe Edition: Adventures in the Culinary Underbelly – October 23, 2018

by Anthony Bourdain (Author)

A new, deluxe edition of Kitchen Confidential to celebrate the life of Anthony Bourdain. Almost two decades ago, the New Yorker published a now infamous article, "Don't Eat before You Read This," by then little-known chef Anthony Bourdain. Bourdain spared no one's appetite as he revealed what happens behind the kitchen door. Bourdain pulls no punches in this memoir of his years in the restaurant business.

The All New Ball Book Of Canning And Preserving: Over 350 of the Best Canned, Jammed, Pickled, and Preserved Recipes – May 31, 2016

by Ball Home Canning Test Kitchen (Author)

This modern handbook has the best recipes ranging from jams and jellies to jerkies, pickles, salsas, and more- including extender recipes to create brand new dishes using your freshly preserved farmer's market finds or vegetable garden bounty.

Organized by technique, The All New Ball Book of Canning and Preserving covers water bath and pressure canning, pickling, fermenting, freezing, dehydrating, and smoking. Straightforward instructions and step-by-step photos ensure success for beginners, while practiced home canners will find more advanced methods and inspiring ingredient twists.

Smoke and Pickles: Recipes and Stories from a New Southern Kitchen

by Edward Lee

He has the "money pickle" recipe here: Bourbon Jalapenos. Korean twist on southern food.

I recently left my position at a law firm for one at a corporation, yet the law has followed me and I find myself the resident expert on copyright, intellectual property, license negotiation, contract design and interpretation (in addition to asset management, database management, and knowledge management). I was honored and humbled to be nominated to lead NOCALL, and will endeavor to bring the full breadth of my experience and interests to maintain a high level of service to the profession.

Singularity University, my current employer, tends to focus on two themes that are relevant to legal information professionals. The first is a firm belief in an abundant future—that we can create a future where everyone has enough. I believe that the rapid pace of technological changes presents multiple open windows for librarians, if we can only stop looking at the doors that have closed. Secondly, we focus on exponential technologies and their ability to impact large numbers of people. In my current context, my focus is on how the legal industry is changing and will continue to do so, with tremendous implications for each of us, regardless of library type. From innovations in governance to the future of work, there are many avenues for librarians to shape the flow of information, legal and nonlegal, in our workplaces. I want to bring our membership together to brainstorm solutions, continuing to move our profession forward.

CANDIDATE FOR NOCALL BOARD MEMBER AT LARGE

Donna Williams

Title: Director

Organization: California Judicial Center Library – Judicial Branch

City: San Francisco

Years Employed: 1.5 years + 23.5 years with the CA Court of Appeal, 6th Dist.

Education:

MLIS, San Jose State University, CA

BS in Education, Lock Haven State College, PA

Previous Employment:

Organization: USF's Zief Law Library

Title: Head of Access Services

Years Employed: 5 years

Candidate Statement

I am honored to be running for a NOCALL Board Member at Large position. The library business is changing rapidly and we need to usher in the changes in a responsible way. We need to be active and vocal. Librarians are masters at what we do and we need to let the legal world know that we are important members of the legal community.

I have been a NOCALL member since 1985. Public service was instilled in me from a young age so giving back to NOCALL has been a natural fit. I've tried to be on at least one committee per year and I've gained so much from volunteering – leadership, management, and research skills, collective knowledge about law libraries, learning how to run efficient meetings, having trusted colleagues that I could run those "crystal ball" questions by, and the invaluable friendships I've made over the past 30 years. I would not be in the position I am now, or the person I am, without NOCALL.

NOCALL Committees, Offices and Activities

Secretary, VP, President, Past President, AALL Liaison, Archives, Audit & Budget, Constitution & Bylaw, Nominations, Education, Networking, Spring Institute, Academic Relations, Public Access (now Access to Justice), Public Relations, Memorials, and 2007 Recipient of the NOCALL Professional Achievement Award.

Other Professional Activities

AALL member since 1985, AALL Executive Board Member 2010-2012, SCCLL-SIS (Now GLL-SIS), ALL-SIS, RIPS-SIS, SR-SIS. I also served on several committees within SCCLL-SIS from 1989-2012.

Title: Technical Services Librarian

Organization: Sacramento County Public Law Library

City: Sacramento

Years Employed: 10

Education:

California State University, Chico; B.A. English

San Jose State University, M.L.S.

Candidate Statement:

I'm honored to be nominated to serve as a Member at Large on the 2019/20 NOCALL Board, and I'm excited about the opportunity to contribute to an organization that has provided me with the connections and tools necessary to foster and sustain a career in law librarianship.

Since my enrollment as a student member in NOCALL when I was in library school, I've been fortunate enough to serve as a member on various NOCALL committees and for a term as Board Secretary. A lot has changed in our society and the profession itself over the last decade, and NOCALL's commitment to advocacy, professional development, and networking is perhaps more important than ever. I look forward to working with the 2019/2020 Executive Board and NOCALL membership in sustaining those values.
